Complications are rare but some people may experience effects of sedation

- Nausea and Vomiting- can be related to the sedation drugs used. This should be only mild.
- Light-headedness, drowsiness or inability to concentrate. This should resolve overnight.
- You may also be a little unsteady on your feet. Take extra care when walking and be aware of environmental hazards eg slippery floors, uneven floors, poor lighting.
- Pain and bruising may occur at the needle site where the sedation was administered.

WHAT TO EXPECT

- It is normal to feel tired.
- If you had a gastroscopy you may experience slight irritation or soreness of the throat. Lozenges or warm salt water gargle may help.
- You may experience some wind pain and flatulence because gas is used to inflate the stomach and bowel during the procedure. This should only last a short time. Mylanta, peppermint tea and heat packs may help.
- You may be dehydrated following your procedure. Ensure you increase your fluid intake over the next 24 hours.
- If you have had polyps removed, it is normal to have slight bleeding but only for a short time.
- Your bowels should return to normal within a couple of days. Some people do experience some diarrhoea initially but should settle without any treatment.
- If blue dye has been used during the procedure, you may experience blueish green urine and/or pass coloured fluid with bowel movement for up to 24 hours.
